Reach Your Potential

WHAT EVERY CHILD DESERVES

Just as human parents swell with pride in their child's achievements, our heavenly Father receives great glory, renown, and satisfaction when His children reach their peak potential in Christ.

The Situation

If we asked our heavenly Father, "What is most important to You," He might answer, "I have no greater joy than to hear that My children are walking in the truth" (3 John 4). The sanctification process is very dear to God's heart. Why? When believers walk uprightly, we fulfill God's highest purpose.

Ask any Christian parent, "Do you want your child to reach his or her peak potential?" The answer is always, "Yes, of course!" Follow up that first question with, "In addition to his or her salvation, is anything more important to you?" Parents usually respond, "No. Nothing else compares with the priority of my child becoming all that God wants him or her to be."

Then why are many Christians "mediocre?" Why do so few children possess wholehearted zeal for God? There are two main reasons. First, in an effort to be "cool" and to fit in, many kids become satisfied with lackluster spiritual growth. The world belittles righteousness, selflessness, and humility—the very virtues that God prizes!

Second, kids rarely rise above the level of adult expectations. They reach only as high as we hold the bar. We often place the "spiritual growth" bar far too low, causing them to believe that their faith is not all that important. Thus, we're cheating our children! By establishing higher standards, we can motivate children to keep growing as Jesus' lifelong disciples.

Every child deserves an opportunity to reach his or her peak potential; yet most kids attain only a fraction of their true capacity. Instead of seeking the summit of their abilities, they linger in the valley of complacency. Children need our help to reach the spiritual heights that God intends! It is time to "raise the bar." Kids have untapped potential to learn practical skills for using God's Word, relating to people, and living out their faith.
